Flying and Whisky
The Long Sleep
The Perfect Fuel

—By Arthur Brisbane—
(Copyright 1929)

HENRY Ford said prohibition is necessary because flying is here and air pilots must be sober.

This column suggests that air pilots are sober in Europe without prohibition.

New prohibition itself cannot stop Ford's statement concerning the importance of sobriety in flying.

Wilmer Stultz, aviator, who piloted Miss Earhart across the ocean, killed himself and passed away.

It is often reported, following examination by a coroner for the district attorney, that Stultz was very "drunk" when he crashed.

It now is soberly proposed to "dry up" the speakeasies around every U.S. airport.

Not a bad idea, except that they can't close the speakeasies. And those speakeasies unfortunately sell the most deadly whisky.

23 years old one day, died last week with his 65 year old son.

WINNIPEG, July 8.—Week-end rains in Western Canada had a heavy impact on the economy, but the cost today, forcing prices down to 20-25 cents in the first hour, was taken care of by the fact that the rains were not sufficient throughout the prairie provinces and that the market was still open. The price answers were not in a quick change in the market, however, and the most rapid rise came in the second, and the most dramatic, half of the day.

TRAFFIC SAFEGUARDS

Chief Shute wants an automatic traffic-control system of colored lights installed at the four busiest corners on Jasper Street at one corner on 101st street. Friend Jones does not care. As between the two, the public will probably accept the recommendation of the head of the police department, rather than the view of a newspaper whose idea of making the road safe is to raise the speed limit and tell everybody to tramp on the quiet button.

Motor cars are multiplying in Edmonton. Some regulation is needed to keep pace with the multiplying dangers of mishap. A system of signal lights at these corners would at least leave drivers and pedestrians without excuse if they disregarded the rules of the road. As between the two, the public will probably accept the recommendation of the head of the police department, rather than the view of a newspaper whose idea of making the road safe is to raise the speed limit and tell everybody to tramp on the quiet button.

It might help to set in the foreground of our moral debates a question of right and wrong of right for the child.

Some time ago Mrs. A. G. McConville, wife of Dr. McConville and "Mrs. Members," undertook to draft such a code of rights, viz.:

"Children shall be secure in the following nine rights:

1. The right to be born, parents, to secure in advance a favorable

date for birth; the right to be born,

Second, the right to a competent mother, to insure his first two or three years of life in health, happiness and safety.

Third, the right to a competent father, to stand beside him in his efforts to make him a man, and to at least the minimum of normal life's demands.

Fourth, the right to community surroundings, that will make him successful in all phases of parental duty.

Fifth, the right to certain provisions for vital and social statistics that will make it sure that every child born in the world has a right to life and to live in the community and that he be accounted in all statistical tables.

Sixth, the right to health standards in the community, the school, the medical system, and all cultural opportunities as shall insure to each child his full share of the social inheritance to which all are heir.

TAKING THE LONG VIEW

The taxpayers of Regina a few days ago endorsed nine money by-laws, covering an aggregate expenditure of more than a million dollars. This is in addition to the outlay for street improvement, for which authorization was secured some time ago. The new by-laws provide for permanent street paving construction, for increasing the city's water supply, for extending the sewer system, adding to the hospital accommodation, and erecting and enlarging school buildings.

Regina taxpayers are evidently taking the long view of development and are refusing to panic because the crop outlook is less rosy than in some former years. That is the correct view. The west is growing. It will continue to grow. One sees no reason to cry wolf and to stop the spread of settlement, nor to do anything to retard the increase in wealth-production. The course of wisdom for every western city is to keep working steadily, year in and year out, on a same policy of improvement and extension of civic services and facilities.

SOME RAILWAY QUESTIONS

Sir Henry Thornton is to visit Edmonton. The city council will have the opportunity to discuss with the head of the National Railways several matters of mutual concern. The subway on 97th street is due to put on the market next year, and it is to be any future arrangement to be made in connection with that under-taking should be made at the conference. The establishment of railway shops at Edmonton to take care of the repair work on all National lines in the district is another matter of much importance which should be impressed upon Sir Henry.

Another project that deserves consideration is the paving of 104th avenue, a local 101st street west. The avondale section of the railway property, and part of the expense would fall upon the National. The paving of that avenue is a logical next step in the development of permanent railway system in the city. The road would give access to the National station and freight sheds, connecting with industrial establishments in either end of the city, and would be a great convenience to the trade route which would divert a good deal of traffic from Jasper. How the National executive would view the proposition should be ascertained.

A MATTER OF COST

The Lethbridge city council has abandoned the project to construct an airport there, because of the cost, estimated at from $25,000 to $40,000. This raises the question whether the project should be developed, except in a very restricted degree, while municipalities are called upon to stand the expense of providing these terminals. The larger centres can bear this expense, but the smaller ones cannot afford the outlay, and in a good many cases will doubt that they would get compensation benefits if they did so at a sacrifice to the general taxpayers.

In the west, really large cities far apart, Lethbridge is a substantial city of the smaller type, fairly representative of the great majority of western communities which rank as important centres. If the cost puts an airport out of the question for Lethbridge, it is equally out of the question in the western provinces and all towns that can be looked for while the present arrangement continues to air service between the half dozen large cities. If the service is to be extended more widely than that, it will probably be necessary for the Dominion Government to establish a bonus plan by which assistance can be given to smaller centres in the construction of property equipped landing fields.

Followed

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I once met a man who said to me: "I'm being followed along the town. Whenever I go I that face I see. I don't know who it is, but someone has hired him to know All that I do and where I go."

"Someone watches me night and day! I'm afraid of what he might say. I'm afraid of what he might see. I must be careful of what I do. I can't get out of that fellow's view."

Little I thought of his story then. It is a true one, though it may not be a stage, but an examination hall, where I oft' am sought shadowed from door to door. But of us it is now a well-known fact. Day and night we are followed, too.

I am being followed, my girl and boy. She follows me, and I follow her. Not so detects that men employ. Still all my best and my worst they know. Still all my secret and my secret they see. And I am afraid of what they might see.

GRAIN FORCED DOWN BY RAIN, BUT RECOVERED

Early Decline in Prices in Winning Some Overcome—Climb Recovered

By James Richardson & Sons, Ltd.

WINNIPEG, July 8.—A drop of 2½ cents for wheat and 1½ cents for barley was registered today in both market and final quotations on the two principal grain markets of the day. The sudden drop was caused by reports that the wheat crop in the West was bad. When definite reports were received, however, the market recovered and that section in dire need of support. The market in the West started its upward climb when no new crop report was reported today.

The wheat held unchanged to 1½ higher in a fairly active market.

Barley recorded a gain, and fix and fix plus were up 1 cent each.
